This Bible study format is designed with purpose. The goal is to help you discover and apply biblical truth while you simultaneously learn a simple, reproducible process for studying the Bible and discipling others. In other words, you are being equipped with biblical content, application, and a process which you can easily pass on to those you disciple.

An intentional disciple-making group is much more than just a Bible study group. This format is intended to be organic in nature, highly participatory, and focused on doing the Word, not just knowing the Word.

The format is divided into four steps: (1) The First Step, (2) The Study and Discussion Step, (3) Next Step, and (4) Ministry Projects. The intent of each step is described below.

(1) THE FIRST STEP

Fellowship and Accountability

Begin each disciple-making session with a time of fellowship. The group should exchange stories from the week, catch up on life events, share prayer requests, and pray for one another and opportunities to interact with those in their circles of influence. Also take this opportunity to review the content of the previous session. Invite everyone to recall key truths from the Bible study, quote memory verses to the best of their ability, and share updates regarding progress on personal and spiritual goals they have set from previous lessons.

(2) THE DISCUSSION STEP

Digging into the Word

Ask a volunteer to read aloud the selected Scripture passage for the session. Next ask participants to work together to restate the passage in their own words. At this point, everyone should open their notebooks in which they recorded their initial responses to SPECK questions during their own study of the passage. Ask each SPECK question and facilitate the discussion. Provide time for responses. If one or more of the questions cannot be answered for the given passage of Scripture, simply continue with the next question.

(3) THE NEXT STEP

Personal Application and Goal Setting

Prepare participants to take their next step based on what they discovered by asking each of them to write down and share with the group their next step (spiritual action goal). It will likely be closely related to the last SPECK question, and it should be as specific and measurable as possible. Remind participants of the verse(s) to memorize and the Scripture passage(s) to study in preparation for the next session. Encourage them to record their responses to the SPECK questions in their personal notebooks. Close with participants praying for one another and their respective next steps.

(4) MINISTRY PROJECT
